WHO WE SERVE

Global Parents for Eczema Research serves a vital role by providing support to patients and caregivers facing the challenges of eczema. This non-profit organization offers valuable resources, information, and a sense of community to those who navigate the challenges of managing eczema, particularly in children.

OUR VISION

Our vision is a future without childhood eczema and our mission is to end the suffering of children with eczema through breakthroughs in research and family support.

OUR MISSION

GPER is a grassroots, parent-led non-profit organization that advances research and policy changes that lead to better treatments and prevention strategies for moderate to severe eczema in children. We provide peer support, access to cutting-edge scientific information, and aid families on their eczema journeys.

How skin conditions
IMPACT patients

Patients with eczema often experience intense itching, painful skin inflammation, and discomfort, which can lead to disrupted sleep, lowered self-esteem, and impaired daily activities. Caregivers of children with eczema face emotional strain and management complexities. The research underscores the need for improved treatments and support to enhance the quality of life for individuals and families dealing with the challenges of eczema.

OUR STORY

GPER was formed by two different parents of children with eczema in 2015 who struggled with finding evidence-based information to guide medical decisions and a lack of safe, long-term treatment options. GPER formed around the need for research to support evidence-based medical decisions for children with eczema and emphasize the need for improved treatments.

HOW WE MAKE AN IMPACT

Since 2015, GPER has operated in these strategic areas: developing and disseminating research, engaging in public policy, and supporting caregivers and families.

GPER shapes research direction to address eczema complexities, aligning with patient needs. Our organization collaborates with researchers, aiding insightful study formulation on mechanisms, triggers, and treatments. Advocating policy changes at various levels, GPER fosters patient-friendly care environments. Sharing research findings widely, GPER enhances professionals' understanding and empowers patient choices. Lastly, GPER dedicates itself to supporting caregivers and families who navigate the challenges of eczema. By offering a platform for peer support, access to reliable information, and a sense of community, GPER empowers these individuals to manage the condition more effectively.

Through these strategic pillars, GPER continues to fortify its commitment to catalyzing advancements in eczema research, policy, and patient-centric care.
